Tohoku District -off the Pacific Ocean Earthquake

Since the Great East Japan Earthquake hit Tohoku District on March 11, 2011, we have been receiving heartfelt messages from all over the world. Thank you very much for your concern. We would like to tell you that YNU is safe. Yokohama, the city in which our university locates, is 400 km away from the epicenter and is some 250 km away from Fukushima Nuclear Power Plant. We have not heard of any injuries of our students, faculty and administrative staff.

Soon after the earthquake, some staff members of YNU voluntarily started to collect donations from faculty and administrative staff, students, and three alumni associations. A total sum of 2,004,149 Yen was collected from March 15 to September 20, 2011, 80% of which was donated to Japanese Red Cross Society and 20% to Japan Committee for UNICEF.

YNU Museum Opens

YNU established "YNU Museum" in December 2011. We have made a number of academic and research contributions to society since the establishment of the Teacher Training Center over 135 years ago. YNU Museum was set up in order to showcase the historical development of the university in response to the changing times and its vision towards the future.

6th YNU Home Coming Day

On October 29, 2011 the 6th Yokohama National University Home Coming Day was held. Under clear autumn sky, over 1,100 of YNU alumni and students, faculty and administrative staff, and citizens of Yokohama participated in the event. Approximately 400 attendants listened to the keynote lecture made by Director of Mitsuo Aida Museum Mr. Kazuhito Aida. The theme of his lecture was “the preciousness of life”. He recalled the life of his father, a very famous calligrapher and poet, Mr. Mitsuo Aida and introduced the thought behind his father’s works. By showing the work “the road”, in particular, Mr. Aida linked the Japanese society after the Great East Japan Earthquake and the war era that his father went through. Mr. Aida concluded his lecture saying that the work “the road” describes “the life of his father” and that it fits into the current severe situation that Japan is facing. His words brought tears to some listeners’ eyes.

This year, various events were organized to bridge different generations and alumni associations. Participants were free to participate in the events they felt like.

Keynote lecture by Mr. Kazuhito Aida

One of those events was YNU Japanese Speech Contest. A total of ten international students studying at YNU gave speeches with the theme, “Japan, which I found”. Their contents covered a wide range of Japanese aspects, such as morning radio gymnastics, queuing up in front of noodle shops and so on. It was a great time for the listeners to reacknowledge the Japanese culture and society through the eyes of those speakers.
